YGH NAMES NEWEST ASSOCIATE PRINCIPAL

Portland, OR (February 24, 2017) – Jerry Waters, AIA, LEED AP, has recently been named an Associate Principal at Portland, Ore.- based Yost Grube Hall Architecture (YGH). The appointment recognizes Waters' contributions to the firm's success, his depth of experience, and the leadership he provides. He joins Principals Nels Hall, Bob Zimmerman, and Tom Robbins.

Waters is a senior project designer with twenty years of design and multi-group collaboration experience on both the West and East Coast. Waters' design portfolio spans projects for K-12 and higher education clients, as well as mixed-use housing, stadiums and performing arts centers and hospitals. His designs have been featured in numerous national publications while garnering awards for excellence in design and sustainability.

The Architecture Foundation of Oregon recently named Waters a 2016 Van Evera Bailey Fellow, providing funding for research into the role of architecture in supporting education delivery models specific to the Reggio Approach in Italy, the Montessori model in K-18 Dutch settings, and the world leading Finnish system. Waters is NCARB-registered and holds a Bachelor of Architecture degree from the University of Oregon and a Master of Architecture degree from the University of Pennsylvania.
